Studio Bell, home of the National Music Centre

The home for music in Canada is at Studio Bell, located in the heart of downtown Calgary. This spectacular 160,000 square-foot facility showcases the National Music Centre’s collection of musical instruments and artifacts, and hosts concerts and special events. Galleries across five floors offer visitors the opportunity to explore the story of music in Canada, and music lovers of all ages can play, rock, and discover something new through Studio Bell’s self-guided experience.

Designed for Music

Architect Brad Cloepfil (Allied Works Architecture) was inspired by musical instruments and the landscape of Western Canada when he designed a building that sounds as good as it looks. Here are a few quick facts:

- Over 220,000 custom glazed terra cotta tiles clad the exterior and interior and change color with the sun.
- Through acoustic engineering, the building can be “played” like an instrument.
- The historic King Edward building was restored and incorporated into the design.
